“MSU POINTS OF PRIDE: MSU has several excellent academic centers that address diversity, equity and inclusion as a part of their core mission. Three centers of note are the Julian Samora Research Institute, the Native American Institute and the Center for Gender in Global Context. Research and scholarship supported by these centers plays a crucial role in the overall landscape for diversity academic work at MSU.”

ANSWER: MSU Defendants object to Plaintiff’s “Introduction” as inconsistent with the pleading requirements of Fed. R. Civ. P. 8, and because it is styled as a narrative summary of Plaintiffs’ case rather than a short and plain statements of the claims.

1. Dr. Christie Poitra is a nationally recognized expert in Native American studies. She has been employed in the Native American Institute (“NAI”) at Michigan State University since October 2015, serving as Interim Director since October 2018. In her time at NAI, Dr. Poitra has been awarded $1,043,157.00 from the National Science Foundation and other granting agencies, as Primary Investigator and Co-Primary Investigator; planned, developed, supported, and implemented community-based collaborative research, partnerships, and programming with: tribal colleges, Indigenous communities, tribal governments, urban centers, and K-12 schools throughout Michigan; brokered grant-funded, cross-unit, and faculty research partnerships and faculty development opportunities for MSU; authored numerous grant proposals, articles, reports, invited talks, and presentations; managed 10 accounts and administered 2 endowments; directly supervised staff, consultants, and undergraduate and graduate students; and collaborated on outreach, research, and grants with 21 faculty, 5 academic staff, 4 post-doctoral students, 8 tribal governments, 2 tribal colleges, 4 K-12 schools, and 7 non-profit organizations.

ANSWER: MSU Defendants neither admit nor deny the allegations in Paragraph 1 of Plaintiff's Complaint because they lack knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of those allegations and, therefore, leave Plaintiff to her proofs.

2. It is not an exaggeration that there is no one with the breadth of experience, scholarly output, and depth of community relationships in the field of Native American studies comparable to Dr. Poitra in the entire state of Michigan. MSU regularly touts the work of NAI and of Dr. Poitra specifically to demonstrate its commitment to Native American studies. Dr. Poitra even wrote the official land acknowledgment used by MSU.

ANSWER: MSU Defendants neither admit nor deny the allegations in Paragraph 1 of Plaintiff's Complaint because they lack knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of those allegations and, therefore, leave Plaintiff to her proofs.

3. Due to MSU budget cuts, Dr. Poitra has built this impressive professional oeuvre while doing the work of at least three full time employees in NAI. Even more impressively, Dr. Poitra has achieved all this while spending the past three and a half years fighting off discrimination, harassment and stalking from multiple supervisors, navigating the onerous and lengthy MSU Title IX and discrimination investigation process; going through complaint processes with both the U.S. Department of Education and the Equal Opportunity Employment Commission to try to seek accountability for the abuse she has suffered; and dealing with retaliation from her superiors at MSU.

ANSWER: MSU Defendants deny as untrue the allegations that Plaintiff performed the work of three full-time MSU employees simultaneously or that she suffered retaliation from her superiors while employed by MSU's NAI. Answering further, MSU Defendants neither admit nor deny the remaining allegations in Paragraph 3 of Plaintiff's because they lack knowledge or information sufficient to form a belief as to the truth of those allegations and, therefore, leave Plaintiff to her proofs.

4. Instead of protecting and supporting Dr. Poitra, MSU has left Dr. Poitra continuously exposed to discrimination, harassment, and retaliation; failed to enforce its own no-contact directive against her abuser; forced her to shoulder significantly more work than any reasonable individual should be expected to perform; denied her equitable pay and professional title; forced her to clean out her abuser's desk, which contained his sexual lubricants; shrunk the budget of and even threatened to dissolve NAI; and allowed her abuser to continue working as a professor on campus at Michigan State University where he remains as of the date of filing.

ANSWER:

MSU Defendants deny the allegations in Paragraph 4 of Plaintiffs' Complaint as untrue.

468. Defendant Kent responded to Jane Doe via email on August 12, 2019, as follows:

Ms. [Doe],

Thank you again for meeting with me the other week. I appreciate you sharing with me your concerns regarding the investigation of your complaint. I have taken your concerns back to our leadership, and we have considered how we can use your feedback to make our investigation process better as we move forward.

As I described during our meeting, in the past year OIE has taken a number of steps to manage a large influx of complaints and expedite the time it takes for us to conduct investigations. Pursuant to our conversation, I have reviewed the timeline of your complaint with OIE leadership to see if there are additional items we can change in our investigation process to address the concerns you raised. Based on the review, I do not find that there are systemic issues which have not already been resolved which would benefit from review in the form of a formalized audit of your complaint.

Accordingly, I cannot justify diverting resources from current investigations in order to satisfy an audit. I apologize that I cannot provide the type of audit/review that you are looking for.

Sincerely,
Rob Kent
